RBOB futures have received some endorsements from chartists and other technical analysts, and prices settled higher today despite an early stumble. The strength in gasoline helped lift WTI crude and diesel. August RBOB goes off the board with a final settlement of $2.3659/gal, up 0.0145/cpg for the day. Most of the trading took place on the September contract, where prices settled up 0.0096/cpg at $2.3347/gal. September WTI added +0.33cents/bbl, to close at $73.95/bbl. Diesel couldn't match the gasoline gains. August contracts saw their last day of action with a penny increase, resulting in a $2.1994/gal settlement. September was more active, but prices advanced by just 0.0035/cpg, to $2.1956/gal.
